MR. AND MISS JIM HILL
Kevin O'Hara and Shirley Taylor

Introduction

The purpose of this yearbook is to help as many people as possible to become better acquainted with the general organization and operation of Hill High School, and certainly to serve as a source of orientation for our new students and teachers.

The essence of a satisfactory yearbook lies in the acceptance of the fact that the school is an educational institution providing the setting for a program properly balancing curricular and extra-curricular activities. Within this program, the annual can fulfill its million missions as photo-journalistic reports or records of all school activities for a given year.

This yearbook can be the perfect means for keeping in touch with yesterday, especially in this celebration year.

HISTORY OF JIM HILL SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL

Jim Hill Senior High School is proud of its heritage as a part of the Jackson Public School System. We are justly proud of the physical structure, the miraculous growth and improvement in regard to the public interest.

The school was named for Jim Hill, an outstanding leader who served with distinction as National Republican Committeeman from Miss. It had its beginning in 1912 as an elementary school, when a two-story brick structure was erected at 1060 Lynch Street for the purpose of providing accommodations for the pupils on the west side of Jackson, and of reducing the large enrollment of Smith Robertson School. Mr. S. M. Brinkley served as its principal for twenty-eight years.

In the building program of 1940, a new Jim Hill Junior High School was erected on West Pearl Street. It was a one-story brick structure modernly equipped with seating, lighting, heating, and many other conveniences. During this time pupils and teachers initiated an educational guidance program centered around homerooms, that has stimulated pupil-teacher participation in school and community activities down through the years.

In 1952, to accommodate pupils in grades seven through twelve, the school was expanded to a Junior-Senior High School. Many courses were made possible through this expansion, including band, choral music, a counseling program, and added facilities for home economics and physical education. The physical education and health programs included a modernly equipped gymnasium used by all students. The building was also equipped with a new spacious library, clinic and science laboratories.

New improvements in 1953 included landscaping and beautification of grounds, lighting facilities for night performance on the athletic field and added recreational facilities, including hard-surfaced courts for tennis, volleyball and other varied outdoor activities.

In 1958 a new two-story annex was added, changing the front entrance to the building from Dalton Street to West Pearl Street. This annex gave new locations for a larger administrative suite, a larger library, additional clinical, homemaking, and industrial arts facilities. The annex and the remodeling of the old building added fourteen new classrooms.

For 14 years the school operated as a Junior-Senior High School on Dalton at West Pearl Street site. Because of the growth of the city, the continuously increasing enrollment, the expansion of the curriculum, the high school was again moved, leaving the Junior High with a new name, the W. W. Blackburn School.

The new modern Hill Senior High School was completed in 1966 on Fortune Street in southwest Jackson.

This beautiful, spacious, well equipped building includes many additional facilities for the convenience and educational preparation of students attending Hill Senior High School.

Dear Students and Co-Workers:

This year we observe America's Bicentennial. Two-hundred years ago this country had its beginning as a free and independent nation. One needs only to review America's history in order to determine whether or not this nation's spirit of freedom and independence has been extended to all of her citizens.

It is my belief that, if America is to live up to its proclamation of freedom, it will be through the efforts of her educational institutions.

Here at Hill High School, it is my profound hope and fervent prayer that every student will have the opportunity to learn, practice and experience the ideals and concepts of freedom and independence of the individual as promised in a democratic society.

Personally, I challenge each of you to be living examples of people working in a cooperative atmosphere, each respecting the rights and freedom of the other, as we study and learn together day after day.

Remember, no institution is any stronger nor any better than the people that make up that institution. Let each of us continue to strive for the principles and ideals of freedom and integrity of the individual in such a way as to reflect honor and credit to ourselves and to our school.

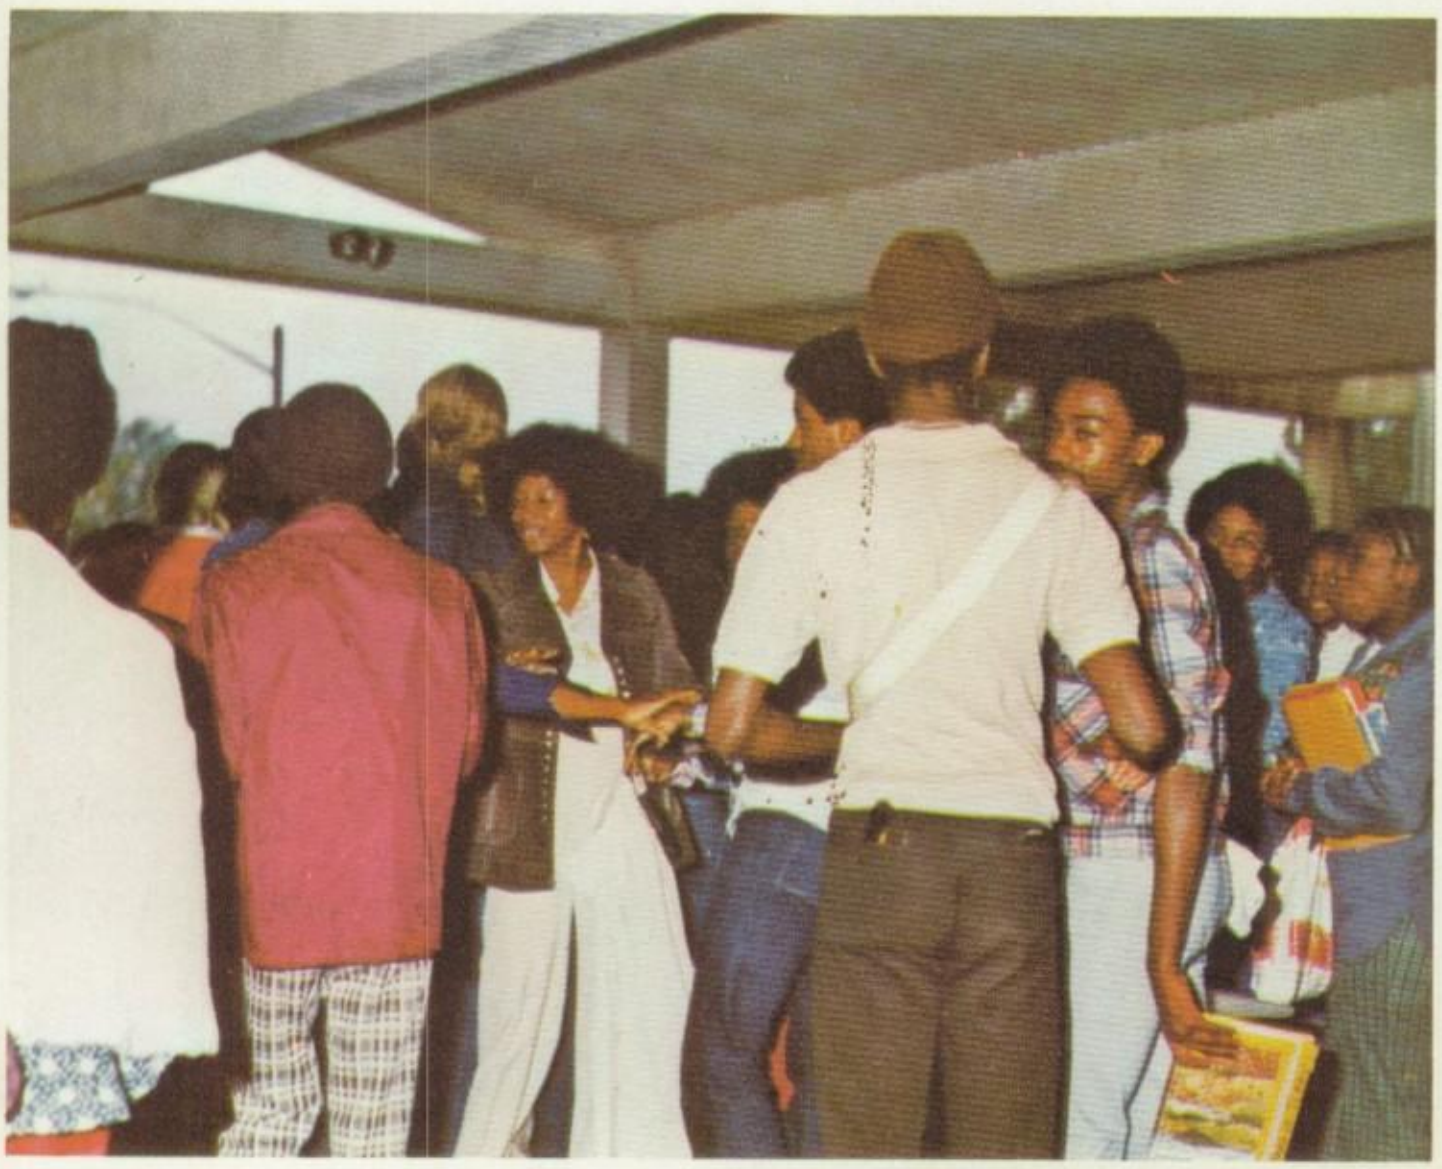
Anne Dickerson and Larry Herrington, members of the Homecoming Court.

There is always a friendly relationship among students at Hill.

It's time to go home for these young ladies.



Students are leaving the building at the end of another school day.

Mr. Angelo is helping Jan Leird and Cathy Smith with some advanced math problems while Margaret Carr works at a separate desk.

Students frequently use the library containing thousands of books and a varied selection of periodicals.

Is this the correct door?

Paul Davis is solving an assigned problem with the help of the computer as Manoj Bahlla looks on with interest.

Shirley Taylor and Monyette McLaurin, members of the Homecoming Court.

Hill locked in battle with Murrah.

Daryl Thurman and Shelia Brinson, members of the Homecoming Court.

Miss Tillman returns to her seat to watch the second half of the football game. Her escort is Alonzo Jones.

Julia Orr and David Parker, members of the Homecoming Court.

Go Tigers go, go Tigers go, go Tigers go, go Tigers go, go - go -

Coach Charles Bingham and the varsity team.

I have had a very busy day. Beverly Burnham seems to want a little rest before moving any farther.

Cheerleaders give glamour to athletics as well as excitement and enthusiasm which seemed not quite as prevalent in the non-competitive activities.

The Majorettes through their untiring effort and devotion, have proved themselves a valuable asset to both team and the school.

These young ladies stand ready in their drill formation. They literally bounce with enthusiasm at every game.

The Tigerettes sometime practice in the hall when it is raining outside.

SCHOOL SONG

I

Hill High, we love you 'tis true;
Ideals outstanding embodied in you,
Principles high, and examples so grand,
Hill High for you we will take our stand.

II

Remembering that whene'er we leave
To you goes the honor for whate'er we achieve
In all we do we will strive for the best
Aiming for heights of honor and success.

III

Hill High, you cheer our hearts
Yes, life and comfort it imparts,
Through all the strife and happy days;
And Green and Gold will forever stay.

Chorus

Hill High, though youth come and go,
Remaining steadfast will defeat every foe;
And wherever we go, over land or sea,
It's Hill High, Jim Hill High, the school for me.
Bless Hill High, Jim Hill High, the school for me.
